STEM TRANSFER DAY

Worried about transferring next year? Well, look no further! The University of California, Davis held their annual STEM Transfer Day on March, 4. This event was hosted by Transfer Opportunity Program (TOP), a program that organizes events and opportunities for prospective transfer students. In the past, they held three-hour web seminars where they covered various ranging transfer topics from transfer basics to careers in students' respective fields. The TOP is an amazing resource that is the reason that we have a dedicated UC Davis representative at Ohlone College and other California Community Colleges. UC Davis' STEM Transfer Day is respectively broken into three back-to-back sessions. Following the welcome, students can expect to be informed about on-campus support, preparing for a career, and a student panel. At the end of the event, students had a clear understanding about picking a UC Davis college and finding support within it, general tips in career preparation and finding a career advisor, and hearing first-hand from UC Davis transfer students. If you were unable to attend the event, don't worry! Be on the lookout for more opportunities from the transfer center as college decisions season approaches and another year beckons to begin.
